

Record of Deaths and Burials Among the Freedmen in Alexandria, Virginia ("The Gladwin Record")

Laundry day at "Volusia," a farm off Duke Street near Holmes Run, 1860s. More than half of the burials in Freedmen's Cemetery were of children. Special thanks to Raymond Frederick, Jr. for use of the photograph.

The following list is taken from the book Alexandria, Virginia Death Records, 1863-1868 (The Gladwin Record) and 1869-1896 by Wesley E. Pippenger and published by Willow Bend Books of Westminster, Maryland. It is reproduced here with their very generous permission.

Discovered by Wes Pippenger at the Library of Virginia, this document is generally referred to as the Gladwin Record. Begun in March 1863 by Eliphalet Owen, a minister and clerk/assistant to Superintendent of Contrabands Rev. Albert Gladwin, the record continued to be maintained by the Freedmen's Bureau until January 1869.

Entries include name; date of the report of death or burial (which roughly correspond to the death date); age; next of kin or person making the report; residence or place of death, or both (presumably, the locations were usually one and the same); and additional comments about burial or cause of death. Ideally, each entry would include all such data, but often some information was not supplied.

Mr. Pippenger has reorganized the chronological list into alphabetical order. The published information has here been further edited. Mr. Pippenger faithfully transcribed personal names and place names verbatim. Here, however, originally misspelled street names have been corrected, and most abbreviations have been spelled out to assist those who may not be familiar with Alexandria. Several names and associated data have been added, based upon the information contained in an 1865 memorandum book probably kept by Owen and now contained in the National Archives and Records Administration, Record Group 105, Records of the Bureau of Refugees, Freedmen and Abandoned Lands, Entry 3878. Minor edits of the entries relating to soldiers' deaths at L'Ouverture Hospital have been informed by The Roll of Honor. Names of Soldiers, Victims of the Rebellion, Buried in the National Cemetery at Alexandria, Virginia (Washington, D.C.: Government Printing Office, 1866) and by Edward A. Miller, Jr.'s article "Volunteers for Freedom: Black Civil War Soldiers in Alexandria National Cemetery, Part II" in Historic Alexandria Quarterly, Winter 1998.

The list commences in March 1863, nearly halfway through the Civil War. As a consequence, it does not include the deaths of all the "Contrabands" in Alexandria. At least 1,200 African Americans had perished in the immediate vicinity of Alexandria between the beginning of the war and the establishment of Freedmen's Cemetery. Therefore, while it is not complete, the list contains entries for many individuals who died before the cemetery opened. Most of these were interred at Penny Hill, Alexandria's public cemetery.

The first burials in Freedmen's Cemetery occurred March 7, 1864. The entries below in bold are for individuals who were not, or almost certainly not, buried in Freedmen's Cemetery, as many died before the cemetery opened, others were recorded as buried elsewhere, which is the case for the handful of white refugees recorded. The entries in italics are soldiers who were first buried in Freedmen's Cemetery and re-interred in Alexandria National Cemetery. There are a couple of entries for soldiers that are marked by asterisks (*). These indicate soldiers who were buried in Freedmen's Cemetery for which there is no known record of re-interment in Alexandria National Cemetery. They may yet lie in Freedmen's Cemetery because of a bureaucratic error, or perhaps they are among the unknowns in the National Cemetery. Letters, words or numbers which are underlined indicate spellings which Mr. Pippenger considered questionable or representing possible mistakes, omissions, etc.
